

tiptel 114

Easy to use

The tiptel 114 is a compact telephone for use in places where there is limited space for a telephone set. The high-quality device is, for example, excellent for use in the production or care sector (like hospitals) and retail (among others at cash registers in a supermarket).

The device stands out because it is easy to attach it to the wall. The device is easy to operate because of the clear keyboard in the handset. With one press of the redial key you can redial the number that you last called. During the phone call it is possible to switch the microphone off and on. Very practical if, for example, you want to consult and do not want the conversation partner to hear it. If you have connected the tiptel 114 on an analog port of a telephone exchange it is possible to transfer calls to another telephone.

You can hear an incoming call (by the call signal) and see (by the optical indication on the horn). When the device is connected to a telephone exchange, difference between an internal and external call audible. The horn is also provided with an induction coil and is therefore special suitable for hearing-impaired people, who use a hearing aid device.
